

THE BIG PICTURE

NORTHERN IRELAND
USHET

A rider on a CTC tour of Northern Ireland investigates the old port of Ushet. Fair Head stands clear and sheer across Rathlin Sound and I recall the gossiping calls of eider ducks (oooh, oo-err...) carried on a cool breeze from the sea edge. Cycle-touring is the best. No other way to go enables one not only to traverse, but really be in so many different places in the course of a day. And to be sure of a Cyclists Welcome at the end of the day: turn to page 52. Chris Juden
